Missile Program Roles Get Study

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.) said today the Senate Preparedness subcommittee is having extreme difficulty determining who is responsible for what in the lagging missile and satellite programs.

Johnson, majority leader of the Senate and chairman of the committee, reported: "I do not believe in shaking everything up and turning things upside down, but we will have to find out how to streamline the organization."

The committee recalled Allen Dulles, director of the Central Intelligence Agency, and Dr. Herbert Scoville, director of the CIA's Office of Scientific Intelligence, for further questioning.

The first phase of the hearings will wind up sometime tonight when the committee will recess until Dec. 13.

"There is one clear pattern that has emerged from all of the testimony thus far," Johnson said. "It is the extreme difficulty of pinning down lines of authority in the missile and satellite program. It is obvious that the committee will have to inquire carefully into who is running what."

THE SENATE subcommittee summarized the secret testimony of the CIA representatives in a formal statement issued by Johnson. It quoted them as saying the Soviet economy has been growing "relatively faster" than that of the United States.

Soviet production of military goods and services, the summary said, has been roughly equal to that of the United States even though the Soviet's gross national product has been only about 42 percent of this country's.

Dulles attributed this to the high priority the Soviets place on the military and to the smaller amount of production the Russians devote to consumer goods. Johnson's statement also said:

"The CIA confirmed reports that the Soviet is now outstripping the United States in developing a scientific and technological manpower pool. Every Soviet student by the time he finishes high school has had five years of physics, five of biology, four of chemistry and ten years of mathematics."

Farmers Told They Must Cut Crop Output

Tennessee Senator Sees No Other Way To Increase Income

COLUMBUS (AP)—The nation's farmers, hit by spiraling prices and hurt by farm surpluses, must cut production voluntarily if they hope to better themselves financially, says U. S. Sen. Albert Gore (D-Tenn.).

The federal administration's soil bank program cannot help them, Gore told the 39th annual meeting of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation Tuesday night.

"The farmer produces more on less acreage than ever before," the senator said. "The reason he is worse off economically is simply that what he sells has declined in price while those things which he must buy follow the pattern of prices generally, a continuous upward trend."

Reduced price support hurt the farmer even more, Gore said.

"It is fallacious to expect the farmer to produce less while, at the same time, we take government action to lower the support price on that which he is allowed to produce. Unless an adequate unit price is received, the individual farmer has no alternative but to redouble his efforts to increase production," the senator said.

THE CONFERENCE is expected to act on a soil bank resolution at today's concluding session. The resolution calls the soil bank program the "best mechanism for a realistic adjustment in production that has been proposed to date." But it nevertheless asks for some changes.

Earlier in Tuesday's meeting, Charles Kettering, 81-year-old Dayton inventor and retired vice president of General Motors Corp., blamed America's failure to launch an earth satellite on "plain administrative stupidity."

Kettering, honored by the conference for his contributions to agriculture and the general public, said the Russian Sputniks offer no real danger, but that "a lot of people are trying to make something out of them."

He called for more stress on high school scientific education, but added:

"Let education teach us to be servants and not egotists. We don't need to be afraid of anything. Keep doing what we have been doing in the way we have been doing it and we can't go wrong."

1958 Local Government Fund Split

The Pickaway County Budget Commission allocated the 1958 local government fund to the subdivisions last week. The Commission is composed of County Auditor Verna M. O'hara; County Prosecutor Ray Davis, and County Treasurer Robert Colville.

Fifty percent was allocated to Pickaway County, amounting to $45,424. Fifteen percent went to the townships, totaling $13,627. Each township will receive $908.46.

Thirty five per cent was allocated to the county's corporations. This amounted to $31,798.49, and was distributed proportionately, according to population.

Circleville received $22,000; Ashville, $2,000; Williamsport, $1,500; New Holland, $1,500; Commercial Point, Darbyville, Tarlton, South Bloomfield, $959.70 each, and Orient, $959.69.

Money received from sales tax stamps and intangibles, taxes paid by financial institutions on deposits in Pickaway County is allocated by the state. A total of $90,849.49 was received.

'Everything Is All Right' With Ike, Medic Reports

Nixon Is Parttime Sub for Ailing Ike

WASHINGTON (AP)—Vice President Nixon stepped gingerly into the role of a parttime substitute for ailing President Eisenhower today giving clear notice Eisenhower will continue to call the signals on government policies.

A proposal by Sen. Bridges (R-NH) that Nixon take over for the stricken President at two scheduled briefings of congressional leaders next week seemed likely to get Eisenhower's approval.

Nixon said the meetings will be held but added he did not know whether he would preside.

Bridges, who heads the Senate Republican Policy Committee, said he thinks Nixon "should take over the leadership in routine matters for the President, carrying on the known general wishes and policy of the President."

Nixon scheduled further conferences with presidential staff members today at the White House where he spent most of Tuesday without seeing the ill President. He told newsmen when he emerged he might preside over Cabinet and National Security Council meetings.

Snyder Cools Idea of Any New Emergency

President Not Given Clean Bill of Health; Long Rest Expected

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower's doctor said today "everything is all right" with the chief executive. But the circumstances made clear his aim was to scotch any idea of a new emergency rather than to give Eisenhower a clean bill of health.

The physician, Maj. Gen. Howard M. Snyder, spoke briefly with newsmen as he entered the White House around 8 a. m. That was only about eight hours after he had left the bedside of his patient, who is suffering from blockage of a brain artery.

Shortly afterward, Snyder followed up with a brief statement through James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary, which said:

"The President slept almost continuously throughout the night.

"He awoke refreshed this morning. He took his usual shower and shave and has just had a normal breakfast."

Hagerty told reporters Eisenhower was in "fine" spirits. He said he spent 10 minutes with the chief executive.

IN ANSWER to questions, Hagerty said Eisenhower still has a "slight difficulty" in speaking long words. An earlier medical report had said the President suffered an impairment of speech which had been largely overcome.

Hagerty said Eisenhower was aware of his "slight difficulty" in enunciating.

"He would make a little slip and he would laugh and correct it," Hagerty said.

Asked if Eisenhower also was afflicted by some impairment of memory, a condition that often goes along with the speech difficulty in such cases, Hagerty replied:

"There certainly didn't seem to be."

Hagerty added that Eisenhower asked him many questions about old friends in NATO circles.

Hagerty returned ahead of time Tuesday night from Paris where he was making arrangements for Eisenhower's previously planned participation in the NATO summit conference in mid-December.

The press secretary declined to go beyond a statement issued by the State Department Tuesday, saying "it is assumed" Eisenhower will not be able to attend. Vice President Nixon is expected to attend in place of the President.

The assistant White House physician, Col. Walter Tkach, remained at the White House throughout the night as did Capt. Lorene Miller, an Army nurse from Walter Reed Hospital.

HAGERTY said he assumed Eisenhower would be "up and around" in his White House living quarters during the day.

No Delay Seen In NATO Talks

U.S. Ready To Send Nixon as Ike's Sub

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States is ready to go ahead with next month's NATO summit conference without President Eisenhower's participation if the other Allied governments decide that is the best thing to do.

The President's sudden illness dealt a blow, however, to the plan for a dramatic demonstration of Allied unity at this time in the face of Russia's growing scientific and military prowess.

The project for gathering heads of government for a conference in Paris Dec. 16-18 had been built largely around Eisenhower's personality and leadership.

With his prestige, he was to take the lead in proposals for modernizing Allied military systems with missiles and atomic stockpiles and for a greater pooling of scientific resources.

If the Allied governments want to go ahead with a summit session, it was understood that Vice President Nixon would be designated to substitute for Eisenhower.

IN PARIS today, a spokesman for the U. S. delegation to NATO said the U. S. government has made an official decision to send Nixon to the summit conference. The spokesman said the decision would be communicated to the other NATO governments at a regular NATO Council session in Paris Thursday.

Early reaction from other governments indicated they wished to hold the summit meeting with Nixon substituting for Eisenhower, Paris reports indicated.

Should they prefer to postpone the conference, it may be reset for next spring in the expectation that the President would then be able to attend. Meanwhile, the ministers for foreign affairs, defense and finance of the 15 NATO countries would meet as they ordinarily do in December to set in motion the plans for greater Allied unity.

BUT IN RESPONSE to what he called "a hypothetical question" about who in the government would make a decision on retaliation if Russia suddenly attacked Western Europe, the vice president replied: "Any decision requiring presidential action could be made by the President. Major problems that require presidential decision, where the President alone can act, will be put to the President."

The Constitution is silent on who determines when a President is disabled, when a vice president takes over and when the disability ends. No vice president has ever taken over the duties except after the death of a President.

Nixon disclaimed any thought of taking over as acting President during Eisenhower's illness. He sought to explain that during the time he spent at the White House he was acting only as a member of the Cabinet.

Nixon, who is regarded as a leading candidate for the 1960 GOP presidential nomination, has avoided any appearance of trying to take over the top office in two previous Eisenhower illnesses. "I am completely confident the President will return to his desk and resume his responsibilities," Nixon said.

Festive Thanksgiving Spirit Darkened by Ike's Illness

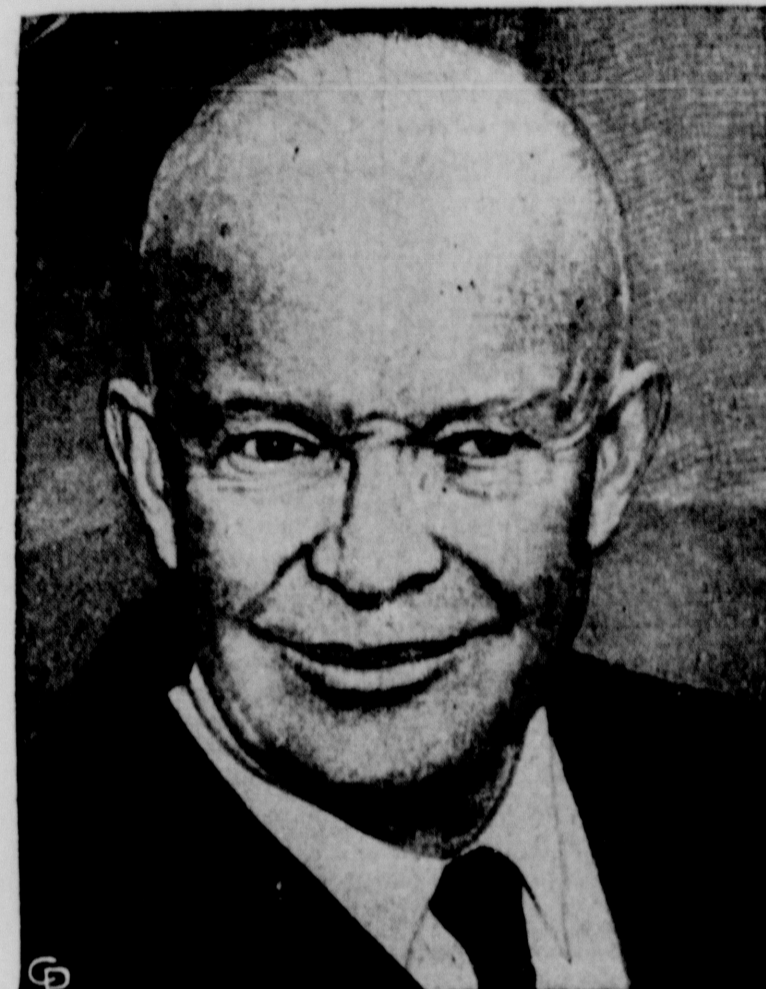

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Americans prepared today to give thanks for still another year's harvest of freedom and abundance, but the shadow of President Eisenhower's illness darkened somewhat the usual joyful spirit of the time.

Prayers for the President's swift and complete recovery will be said Thursday in many morning religious services which have been an integral part of Thanksgiving ever since the Pilgrims first celebrated it.

Otherwise reports from across the country indicated that Americans will follow the patterns set in past years.

They will rush from city to country, from country to city, and from village to village, jamming trains, planes, buses and private cars to join friends and relatives for the day. Some will make it a four-day weekend. To accommodate all, railroads, airlines and bus companies are scheduling extra facilities.

In Plymouth, Mass., the Mayflower II—replica of the original Pilgrim ship—was turned over Wednesday to the Plymouth Plantation in colorful, costumed ceremonies. Thursday afternoon, there will be the traditional Pilgrim procession by costumed townspeople marching from Plymouth Rock to church.

Plan To Put Vehicle Deputies On Salary Surprises Ohio GOP

COLUMBUS (AP)—Proposals to take deputies who sell motor vehicle tags and driver licenses off the fee system apparently caught the Ohio Republican organization by surprise.

Appointment of deputy motor-vehicle registrars long has been regarded as patronage of the party holding the governorship, with distribution of the political plums cleared through county chairmen.

Alvin I. Krenzler of Cleveland, Gov. C. William O'Neill's 1956 campaign chief, recommended placing deputies and their employes on the state payroll to eliminate the 25-cent fee charged for issuing licenses.

Fees approximating $1 million a year statewide now go to some 500 regular deputies and about 300 others who help handle the rush to renew license tags each March.

Krenzler said his proposals resulted from his experience since early this year as deputy registrar in Cuyahoga County. That post, regarded as the juiciest plumb on the Ohio patronage tree, reportedly nets him $30,000 a year.

KRENZLER, who directed a statewide narcotics investigation while O'Neill was attorney general, also recommended:

Renewal of license plates and driver licenses by mail, more driver testing stations for public convenience, branch offices for automobile clubs that handle licenses in most major cities and creation of a study committee to propose desirable changes in the present system to the governor and the 1959 Legislature.

O'Neill said he would appoint such a committee shortly.

The governor said that basically he is against the fee system in government because he feels it led to abuses. He recalled that, during the last Legislature, he threatened to veto a bill proposing 75-cent fees for license renewals if it passed. The measure failed.

It apparently would be up to the study committee to determine whether elimination of fees and transfer of deputies and their employees to the state payroll would save money.

UFO Seer Slated For Tests; Eyes 'Hurt by Glare'

PAINESVILLE (AP)—Tests are being conducted today to determine if Mrs. Leitz Kuhn possibly suffered radiation damage to her eyes from watching what she described as a brightly lighted unidentified flying object (UFO).

She claims her vision has been impaired since she watched a unidentified object about 35 to 40 feet in diameter and "as big as a house" hover over the garage at the rear of her home two weeks ago. She didn't report the incident until Tuesday for fear neighbors would ridicule the story, she said.

Dr. E. D. Hudgens at Madison said blood tests for radioactivity are being conducted at Lake County Memorial Hospital. He said Mrs. Kuhn appeared to have suffered shock and had a rash on her arms and legs.

Corporations Breathe Easy On Tax Ruling

Looking Up Expense Accounts for Last 10 Months Bypassed

NEW YORK — Harassed corporation treasurers are breathing easier today now that they won't have to look up everyone's expense accounts for 10 months back.

But the Internal Revenue Service still intends to take a close look at big accounts it might find unreasonable. And starting five weeks from today it will insist on seeing even the smallest and most ordinary ones.

It also plans to give closer scrutiny to the prizes and awards that the boss may give for achievements, such as winning sales contests.

Protests from businessmen and their employees that past expense accounts had been filed at the corporate treasurer's office and forgotten led the Internal Revenue Service to reverse an earlier order that detailed reports on them be filed with the 1957 income tax return.

But with the reversal came the stern warning that "the long standing rules which the revenue service has been following with respect to substantiation of deductions when a taxpayer's return is audited" still stand — and the service is getting tougher about them.

Tax agents in the field have been instructed to watch for omission of big expense accounts and for questionable entries on the 1957 returns.

Starting January 1, moreover, all employees whose expenses for the firm are paid by the boss must report the total on page one of the 1958 tax return and attach an accounting of what the money was spent for.

The service's directive to agents calls for "a close look at expense deductions claimed involving such items as club dues, entertainment, travel, maintenance of automobiles." And it frowns on "purported business trips by executives vacationing at resort hotels, expenses of hunting trips, expenses of attendance at sporting events in distant cities . . . under the guise of necessary business trips."

Close attention is also asked to "the use of alleged branch offices established in resort cities for the sole purpose of sending business executives to such cities for vacations."

The Internal Revenue Service's rules call for inclusion as gross income "any prizes and awards from an employer to an employee in recognition of some achievement in connection with his employment."

It holds that if the prize is in goods or services, such as trips, "the fair market value of the goods or services is the amount to be included in income."

Some tax consultants have been telling their clients that if a trip won in a sales contest includes some business activities or meetings it doesn't fall under this rule but becomes a business trip.

Since none of the money spent for the trip passed through the employer's hands, they argue, there is no expense account to report either.

But the Internal Revenue Service has told its agents to scan very closely such claims in deciding if the trip is a business activity or a prize junket.

In business circles there has been considerable outcry against reporting as individual income money that just passed through an employee's hands while paying expenses in the boss's name. But the service seems determined to tighten up enforcement all along the line.

A case of driving under the influence of intoxicants and three other traffic violations were handled in Circleville Municipal Court today.

The intoxicated driving count was against Lennie R. Scott, 49, Route 1, Stoutsville. Arrested by city police he was fined $100 and costs, sentenced to three days in jail and had his driver's license suspended for six months.

Chester L. Maslen, 40, Lancaster, forfeited an $8.50 bond for parking in a safety zone. He was arrested by city police.

Youthful Pigeon Hunter Facing Action by Court

Several cases of juveniles breaking into Memorial Hall have been reported by Harry B. Timmons, building custodian.

According to Timmons juveniles apparently enter the building during evening hours looking for pigeons which nest in the upper limits of the hall.

Several times the youths have forced locks on a door leading to the attic. Timmons pointed out that the youths could suffer serious injury if they fell from the attic area.

In the future Timmons said violators will be turned over to juvenile authorities.

Pills or Beer, Court Says Man Is Drunk

BOISE — The Idaho Supreme Court Tuesday upheld the drunken driving conviction of Oren Ellis Thomas of Boise who contended he was not drunk but influenced by pills taken to relieve a toothache.

He said he had consumed three bottles of beer and then taken the pain-killing pills.

The Supreme Court said "it is not necessary that any particular degree or state of intoxication be shown," and that "whether the driver is influenced or affected by intoxicating liquor solely or by a combination of liquor and other substances is immaterial."

TV Takes Over In Dallas School

DALLAS — Television took over at Jefferson Davis school Tuesday. One of the teachers, Marvin L. Grantham, was married on the Bride and Groom show.

Sixteen TV sets were set up in classrooms.

No one looked away from the set in Grantham's fifth grade class. "Wasn't it beautiful?" sighed one little girl.

A deep red blush crept up the cheeks of a boy when the groom kissed the bride, the former Miss Verda Giles, a student in the Baylor University school of nursing.

Vatican Aide Stricken

VATICAN CITY — Adeodato Giovanni Cardinal Piazza, 73, secretary of the Vatican's Congregation of the Consistory, was reported today to be slightly improved after suffering a stroke.

Snyder Cools

House, Snyder said no one can tell "at this time" whether Eisenhower suffered more than a spasm in a brain artery.

"There is no doctor up to this time who can tell you it's a stroke," the Army doctor said.

He added it will take more time to determine exactly what did happen to the President, who was stricken Monday after attending a welcoming ceremony at Washington's National Airport for King Mohammed V of Morocco.

Snyder's comments followed the same careful line taken in formal medical bulletins Tuesday which steered away from use of the word "stroke."

But the team of examining physicians said Eisenhower will have to rest and be restricted to "substantially decreased activity" for several weeks.

No hospitalization is planned, the medical bulletins said.

To Tuesday night's bulletin by the urological specialists, the White House appended this note:

"All attending physicians and consultants are agreed that the President has not had another heart attack and that the present symptoms have no relation to his previous heart attack."

THE OBVIOUS purpose of that statement was to nullify even more completely the assertion during the afternoon by Anne Wheaton, associate presidential press secretary, that Eisenhower had suffered "a form of heart attack."

She said that in reply to questions about technical language in the first medical bulletin, then a bit later reversed herself and said the heart was not involved.

Asked whether that added up to saying Eisenhower had suffered a slight stroke, Mrs. Wheaton checked with Snyder, and then quoted him as saying that as of that time the doctors were not describing it as a stroke. They wanted to study the case further.

But Dr. Irving Wright, an eminent New York heart specialist, called the President's illness "a little stroke."

A past president of the American Heart Assn., Wright added: "A stroke is a scary word to many people. But this type of stroke is fairly common and most of the patients who suffer it make a good recovery."

Healthmen Get VA Benefits

Prisoner's Family May Receive Funds

(Veterans who have a question of interest to ex-servicemen should pass it along to Pickaway County Veterans Service Officer, Jim Shea. His office is in the basement of the Court House in Circleville.)

Q—Are commissioned officers of the Public Health Service eligible for any VA benefits?

A—Under a recent law passed, service by commissioned officers of the Public Health Service is considered active service for the purpose of all benefits administered by the VA.

Q—My husband is a World War I veteran. He is receiving total non service connected pension. Recently, he was arrested, and was sentenced to 1 year in the pen. What will happen to his pension?

A—VA law prohibits the payment of pension to a person confined to a penal institution as the result of a felony or misdemeanor for any part of the period beginning 61 days after such imprisonment begins. However, during this period of incarceration, the veteran's wife and/or children may receive payments of apportioned disability pension at the rates specified by VA regulations.

Q—My husband is very ill with the flu. He must be hospitalized at once. Can I send him out to Berger Hospital, and have the VA pay the bill?

A—I am very sorry, but this cannot be done. The VA will not pay for the hospitalization of any veteran in a private hospital, unless he is hospitalized as an emergency case for a service connected disability. My suggestion is that you have your doctor phone the Dayton VA Hospital, and request them to admit your husband to their hospital as an emergency case. This can be permitted for non-service connected cases.

Q—Is it very difficult to get a loan on your Government Life Insurance?

A—If your Government Life Insurance is of the permanent plan type, it is the simplest thing in the world to do. We can complete a very short application, mail it to the VA, and you will have your money inside of ten days to two weeks.

Q—I am very concerned regarding my Korean State Bonus. Do you think it will do any good to go up to their office in Columbus and ask them about it?

A—I honestly feel that for you to go to the Columbus office in person will be of no help what so ever. If your claim number is lower than 69700, and you have heard nothing from them since your original documents were returned, we would write a letter to them. If, however, your claim number is higher than 69700, it is entirely possible they have not even reached your application, and all we can do is be patient.

Protests from businessmen and their employees that past expense accounts had been filed at the corporate treasurer's office and forgotten led the Internal Revenue Service to reverse an earlier order that detailed reports on them be filed with the 1957 income tax return.

But with the reversal came the stern warning that "the long standing rules which the revenue service has been following with respect to substantiation of deductions when a taxpayer's return is audited" still stand — and the service is getting tougher about them.

High Court OKs $150 Million Issue

COLUMBUS — The Ohio Supreme Court today upheld validity of Ohio's voter approved $150 million bond issue for new state hospitals and prisons.

The court, in a 6-1 decision, ordered Secretary of State Ted W. Brown to sign a $1 million note issued by the State Sinking Fund Commission to raise construction money.

Brown, under a prearranged agreement had refused to sign the note to provide a test of the validity of a constitutional amendment authorizing the bond issue.

Auto Mileage Figures Decline

In recent years an interesting trend in the American motorists are using their automobiles has become noticeable. Although cars in use continue to increase, the distance traveled by each of those vehicles in the course of a year has tended to decrease. If this decline continues a point may be reached eventually where additions to the national pool of vehicles would not necessarily be reflected in increased automotive travel.

Two possible explanations are offered for the trend which is watched with understandable concern by oil and gasoline men as well as everyone else in the automotive supply and service fields.

The optimists blame it on highway congestion and expect the trend to change when more and better roads are built. Pessimists blame it on soaring motoring costs. They do not anticipate increased vehicle miles per car as long as inflation keeps pricing motorists off the roads.

Regardless of which school is right, one circumstance is abundantly plain. If highway congestion is to be greatly relieved the proposed 41,000-mile national highway network must be completed. But if that long-range construction program is ever consummated, taxes borne by motorists will increase greatly.

With indications that high motoring costs already are deterring some road users there could be a point of diminishing returns in the government's grandiose plans.

When the present federal highway plan was being considered it was already apparent that the increase in the gasoline tax and other road use taxes contemplated by Congress would bring in less than half the needed money. Former Treasury Secretary Humphrey warned Congress that more money would have to be found even as matters stood then. Since then standards have been raised and inflation has steadily increased construction costs.

Every month the passes makes it more apparent that the program can never be financed on the basis of present taxes. But the highway bill came before Congress in an election year. For that reason Congress didn't want to impose the taxes actually needed under the program envisaged.

Instead it inserted in the bill a provision saying that Congress should "enact legislation in order to bring about a balance of total receipts and total expenditures" if it later became evident that the original tax increase wouldn't carry the program.

Cost studies based on the intervening price inflation and improved highway design are now being made. A report which may show a shocking increase in the estimated cost of the interstate program is expected by January. Of course 1958 also is an election year and Congress may try to stall off a tax increase again.

But the facts must be faced eventually. If road use taxes are raised repeatedly the highway congestion they are intended to relieve may disappear long before the interstate system is built. Motorists who are keeping their cars in their driveways are demonstrating a most effective way of relieving highway congestion.

Mouse Walks Like a Man

By SAUL PETT
(For Hal Boyle)

NEW YORK (AP) — Among the little things in life that try a man's soul is finding the courage of a sudden conviction or, more precisely, an explanation for his wife.

For example, it is 6:16 p.m., and our hero is out of the office but still downtown enjoying some spontaneous, unplanned relaxation. He has just had two drinks with the boys and the problem now is, not whether he will have more (because he will) but how to tell his wife.

He moves to the phone uncertainly because of a wavering sense of guilt. Against that guilt, the mouse tries to walk like a man, tries to stiffen his backbone with the solid (or almost solid) conviction that, darn it, he's got a night out coming to him.

Still, how does he tell her? How does he break the lyric news that between the two biggest pressure groups in his life—his office and his home—he has discovered a wonderful world of limbo, in which nothing is demanded of him except the courage to linger?

Can he tell the simple truth? He cannot. Not at 6:16 p.m., when in his mind's eye he can see the roast in the oven, the kids fighting over the TV set and the wife desperate for a male bugler to blow taps in the snake pit.

So, what does he tell her? What do you? The answers, we find after a comprehensive survey, vary with profession and personality. Here are some:

The paranoid career man—"Isn't it nauseating, sweetie? Eight hours a day, five days a week, the boss doesn't even say hello to me. And now, tonight, he wants to have a conference over a couple of drinks."

The exclamation - mark explainer - "You'll never guess who dropped into town! Talk about a small world! Talk about coincidence! Remember the one armed guard up at the lake who was so nice to the kids? Well, he's in town! The least I can do is buy him a couple of . . ."

The salesman on the verge of Armageddon—"Well, honey, we did it again! The commission should run into four figures. It's all sewed up—just about. Few more drinks and I'll have old J. M. in the bag."

The timid bookkeeper, or cold calculator—"Love, what kind of a day did you have? (10 minutes later). How awful! You must be exhausted. Why don't you just have a bowl of soup and go to bed now. No don't worry about my dinner. I'll pick up something in town."

The friend of man (the sneakiest sneak)—"Lord, I wish people wouldn't pile their troubles on me! Yeah, it's Charley and Jane again. Seems serious this time—Charley even used the word divorce. Insists I meet him tonight for couple of drinks. Thank goodness, darling, you and I have a better understanding."

Taxes Becoming Oppressive

When a business has an extra expense, such as hiring another 50 clerks to make out detailed expense accounts for income tax purposes, it adds the cost to the price. Thus, the inflation is accelerated by bureaucratic fiat.

The small man, who cannot afford to hire a lot of accountants and to whom it is unbearably difficult to sit down each night to itemize 15 cents for a bus fare; $1.85 for five gallons of gasoline; $1.80 for two cocktails, one for the customer with whom he had to drink may be to get an order.

All right, so this was his experience over 20 years of spending about the same amount every day for getting business. So he charged himself an average of $10 a day for business expenses and he deducted that on his income tax return.

Now he has to write it all down in detail. When he buys a drink for a customer, he must pull out his little black book and note the drink, the cost of the drink, where it was drunk, what time of the day it was drunk and maybe why he drank it.

When he is through with all this each evening, he is psychologically an unfit man. He is sore at the world. He is antagonistic to everybody because he can't remember where that $1.35 went to. He can only account for $8.65 of expenses and he knows he cracked a $10.00 bill. Maybe he bought a toy for a customer's kid.

The small man is being driven daft by his tax problems. He knows that governments need money but he wants to know why there are so many who get away without paying taxes.

Some Congressional Committee ought to get together a list of all the categories of Americans who are exempt from income tax payments altogether; a list of tax havens should be published and how many individual Americans and American companies have taken advantage of them.

Does the American government know the names of Americans who are not paying taxes because they are legally tax-exempt? Is the American who lives and works and spends his money within the United States to be penalized in favor of Americans who live outside of the United States? What about that colony of rich American Communists who live in Mexico City, do they pay full income taxes? What about the rich American movie colonies in Rome and in Spain and elsewhere in Europe, do they pay full income taxes? What is the withholding tax on American dividends which is charged to Americans living in the United States who carry their accounts through Swiss and Venezuelan banks? These parasites live on the rest of us who do pay taxes. What are the obligations of accountants who make up tax returns which contain gimmicks for the legitimate evaluation of taxes, which fancy lawyers call tax avoidance to save their consciences?

When an accountant certifies to the truth of a financial statement, does he include a sworn description of the tax evasion and tax avoidance gimmicks in the statement? Is it completely honest to leave out such details? Is it beneficial to the United States? Does it represent a fair shake for the fellow who year in and year out pays through the nose for a lot of boondoggling bureaucrats who crawl over each other in Washington and elsewhere and let the Russians put up two Sputniks while they battled each other as to who should do what?

Am I sore? Are you? It is bad enough to have to pay so much in taxes; it is bad enough to have to pay such an unjust and inequitable tax as the income tax; it is bad enough to know that other Americans have found a way to avoid and evade tax payments by lawful devices—do we have to suffer a punitive system of collection that makes for every kind of personal hardship and additional expense?

When a tax becomes so onerous in its method of collection that resentment mounts upon resentment, in a free society that tax will and must be abolished; in an autocratic or oligarchic society, it leads to revolution. It would seem that the Internal Revenue Bureau is aiming to have the income tax abolished by public demand.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

JIM STRALEY tells a tragic tale about a Chicago wolf who persuaded a cute chick he had met at a party to accompany him the next afternoon to see the Cubs play. She never showed up at the designated gate.

What's more, she hung up on him when he phoned that evening. He rushed around to her apartment for an explanation, found her still seething. "You're a heel!" she said bitterly. "Make a date and then forget about it—and me waiting all afternoon at the zoo!"

Author Lynn Sumner uses this introduction to warm up his lecture audiences: "It's a great pleasure to speak in this auditorium—a word derived from two Latin roots: Audio, meaning I hear; and tauro, the bull."

An elementary school teacher asked her young charges to describe the taste of chocolate ice cream. She was particularly delighted with one answer. "Chocolate," explained this promising student, "tastes the opposite of vanilla."

Here's Low-Fat Breakfast

By Herman N. Bundesen, M.D.

Instead of discussing tomorrow's turkey dinner, let's talk about breakfast, a low-fat breakfast.

The older we get, the less fat our diet requires. I've often discussed this with you at great length.

Now, there appears to be some agreement among medical men that it's a good idea to cut down the fat intake of the diet for all ages.

A low-fat, low-cholesterol diet, if it provides the proper balance, seems to increase the chances for maintaining good health and might possibly even increase the life span somewhat.

For heart patients, it is customary for physicians to restrict the fat and cholesterol content of the diet.

For one thing, such patients on low-fat, low-cholesterol diets have fewer attacks. More important, they generally live longer than those permitted to eat our everyday high-fat diet.

Doctors also have found that arteriosclerosis is less apt to occur in persons eating low-fat, low-cholesterol diets.

But maintaining such a diet often is difficult, and breakfast is where many of those on low-fat diets go astray.

To help those of you on such diets, the following list of foods usually eaten at breakfast notes both the fat and cholesterol content.

Food	Fat (gm.)	Cholesterol (mg.)
Orange juice, 1/2 cup	0.2	—
Cereal, 1 oz. dry weight	0.6	—
Bread, white, 1 slice	0.9	0.8
Sugar, 1 tsp.	—	—
Butter, 1 tsp.	4.1	14.2
Milk, whole, 1 cup	9.5	32.9
Milk, skim, 1 cup	0.2	0.7
Egg, 1 medium	3.5	340.0
Bacon, cooked, 2 slices	8.8	16.0

As you can see, bacon, eggs and whole milk have a substantial fat and cholesterol content. So it might be a good idea to limit them, at least in part, if you are on a low-fat, low-cholesterol diet.

The basic cereal low-fat, low-cholesterol breakfast pattern probably consists of 1/2 cup of fresh orange juice, 1 ounce of cereal with 1/2 cup of whole milk and 1 tsp. of sugar, 2 slices of white bread with 1 tsp. of butter, 1 cup of skim milk, black coffee or tea.

If you want to cut the fat and cholesterol intake even more, you can use skim milk on the cereal.

Only 139 New Flu Cases Reported

COLUMBUS (AP)—Only 139 new influenza cases were reported in Ohio last week, the Ohio Department of Health reports.

This tended to hold up the belief of Ohio's health director, Dr. Ralph Dwork, that the influenza epidemic probably is leveling off. Last week the department also received reports of 15 deaths due to or related to influenza.

Dr. Dwork also said there have been 7,118 influenza cases reported to his department so far this year. In 79 cases Asian Flu has been confirmed by laboratory tests, but most cases are believed to be of the Asian variety.

The World Today

WASHINGTON (AP)—What happens if President Eisenhower should become too disabled to carry out his duties? Would Vice President Nixon become acting president or president? If so, how? There's no agreed-on answer.

The Constitution itself is foggy on this point.

But it's the third time the question has arisen in a little over two years: After Eisenhower's heart attack; after his ileitis operation; and now again after his mild stroke. He himself asked Congress to clear up the fog. But it didn't.

If a president dies, the vice president becomes president. Seven vice presidents have become president that way. If a president is removed from office by Congress, the Constitution says the vice president succeeds him. That hasn't happened yet.

But this is where the Constitution is vague: it says in case of the "inability of a president to discharge the powers and duties of his office, they 'shall devolve on the vice president.'"

But that raises these questions: 1. What is the position of a vice president who acts as president? Does he thus become president, ousting the man who was elected to the job? What if the elected President recovers?

2. Just what is inability to discharge the duties of the presidency? Is there a time limit on how long a disabled president can remain in office before being succeeded by the vice president?

3. Who decides when the President is too disabled to do his job? And who decides when the disability ends and he can resume his office? The President? He couldn't if he were unconscious. The vice president? That might put him in the position of a usurper.

From what Eisenhower has said in public—in 1956 after his heart attack and again the same year after his operation—it might be concluded he would resign if he felt physically unfit for the job. But that's not positive.

He said: "There is going to be no neglect of the duties of the President of the United States; and when I feel I can't carry them on, I won't be there. . . ."

"If at any time I have any reason to believe that I am not fit, as I believe myself to be now, I will come before the American public and tell them. . . ."

It might be Eisenhower's intention to quit if he felt unfit. But suppose he was only temporarily unfit, although the unfitness lasted for months in which the whole direction of the government suffered. Suppose he felt sure he would recover and therefore did not step aside for the vice president?

What happens to the presidency and its duties then?

There were two presidents—Garfield and Wilson—who remained in office during periods they were physically unfit for it. In neither case did the people around those presidents let the vice presidents take over.

Garfield, shot by an assassin in 1881, lingered 80 days; Wilson, who collapsed in 1919, remained in office until the end of his term in 1921, although he had been paralyzed on one side.

Those around Garfield and Wilson feared that if their vice presidents took over the presidential duties they would by doing so oust the presidents.

Through his former attorney general, Herbert Brownell, Eisenhower earlier this year asked Congress to propose an amendment to the Constitution making clear once and for all how a vice president should take over presidential duties in cases of disability. As it did before, Congress talked about it and did nothing.

Brownell told Congress: "Unless the President, his Cabinet and his other friends are absolutely certain of his status after the termination of his inability, they will tend to oppose any attempt to declare the existence of inability, viewing such a declaration as equivalent to removing the President from office."

Members of Congress have argued through the years that once a vice president assumes presidential duties, he is president, even though the elected President recovers. This is based on the belief there cannot be two presidents at the same time.

Brownell argued: "presidential disability severe and prolonged enough to warrant the devolution of presidential power on the vice president would create something of a crisis itself."

But suppose a president is unconscious and can't know he's unfit? Who decides the vice president should take over? No one has the answer, at least not an undisputed answer.

County Awaits Radcliff, But Appearance Doubtful

The man who is probably Pickaway County's best-known member of the legal profession was scheduled to appear in a new and distinguished role here next week—but, now it looks like he won't make it.

Involved is William D. Radcliff, for 10 years this county's Common Pleas judge, who was elevated to the Ohio Fourth District Court of Appeals earlier this year.

The hitch comes about this way: The appellate court months ago set up an official schedule. It was to "sit" in Circleville on Thursday, Dec. 5. But, so far, no cases from Pickaway County have been appealed.

No work, no appearance. It was the first officially docketed appearance for the high court here since Judge Radcliff became a member. Other members of the tribunal are Judges James Collier and Roy Gillen.

JUDGE RADCLIFF is a familiar figure to Pickaway countians. Built like a football fullback with broad shoulders and crew cut, he is 49.

Into that near half-century has been crammed a full, varied and interesting life in and around Williamsport, although he maintains his law office in Circleville.

He served as mayor of his home town from 1934 to 1939, was the representative from Pickaway County to the Ohio General Assembly from 1939 to 1942.

He enlisted in the U. S. Army as a private in May, 1942, and was released from active duty with the rank of major in January, 1946. He now is a lieutenant colonel in the Army Reserve.

He served as Pickaway County Common Pleas judge from Jan. 1, 1947, until he was named to the appellate bench by Gov. C. William O'Neill last May.

Judge Radcliff's interests are not confined to law. The owner of farm lands in the Williamsport area, he keeps in close touch with agricultural problems. He also has a keen interest in the financial world, being the non-salaried president of Circleville Third National Bank.

The new appellate court judge has been married since 1936 and is the father of one son, Dud, aged 5.

JUDGE RADCLIFF is a member of Circleville Episcopal Church, various Masonic bodies, the American Legion, is a past exalted ruler of Circleville Elks Lodge, a past president of Circleville Rotary Club and is a past district commissioner of Boy Scouts.

He was graduated from Ohio Wesleyan University in 1930 and by Ohio Northern University College of Law in 1933. He was admitted to the Bar of Ohio in 1933 and entered the general practice of law in Circleville.

Sugar Cane Pulp Used for Bricks

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP)—A construction man says he has a patent pending on a process for making lightweight, low cost bricks from sugar cane pulp.

Steven Chambers said he worked five years to develop the brick from bagasse, the pulp left after juice is extracted.

He said it will reduce construction costs 20 per cent and is only one-third the weight of ordinary brick. It is waterproof, fireproof and contains its own insulation against heat and cold, he added.

Social and economic change has brought us a new way of life in the past 25 years. We mourn some of this change. Some we bless.

Our population has grown tremendously by means of a stepped up birth rate and lowered death rate. Along with this growth has come industrial production beyond the wildest imaginings of even a quarter of a century ago.

Rapid social and economic changes have brought improved living conditions to most families. Things not dreamed of 25 years ago are found in homes everywhere.

State Aides Told To Pay City Tax

COLUMBUS (AP)—Gov. C. William O'Neill has ordered officials to supply the names, addresses and salaries of state employees to the Columbus city income tax division.

The order went out to members of the governor's cabinet and heads of state administrative departments and divisions. O'Neill also directed officials to notify employees that, if they come under provisions of the Columbus income tax, they are required to pay the tax.

Columbus levies a one per cent income tax either on Columbus residents or on those who earn their livelihoods in the city.

Prosecution Presses Lima Trial Testimony

LIMA (AP)—Prosecuting attorneys say they will continue calling witnesses today in the first degree murder charge trial of Ralph Forsythe, accused of killing a man whose body has never been found.

Forsythe, 42, is accused in the alleged fatal shooting of Charles Conner, a 37-year-old Lima paint company foreman, Aug. 10. Two prosecution witnesses testified they saw Forsythe shoot Conner in Forsythe's home during a drinking party.

10-Hour Meters Slated

EAST LIVERPOOL (AP)—Parking meters permitting a motorist to park in the same spot for 10 hours without returning to put money in the meter will be installed on two streets here.

Annual operating cost per student in U. S. public schools varies from a low of $136 in Bowling Green, Ky., to a high of $459 in San Francisco, Calif. This is the report of the Illinois Institute of Technology.

Bus Driver Takes Time To Battle Blaze

CINCINNATI (AP)—Bus Driver Jack Shrack pulled into the Greyhound station here Tuesday 15 minutes late, the smell of fire and smoke in his clothing, and the acclaim of his passengers in his ears.

It happened this way. Driving through Hillsboro, en route here from Clarksburg, W. Va., with 19 passengers, Shrack saw the roof of a house burning. He pulled to a stop in front of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hamilton and pounded on the door until they awakened.

He didn't wait until their sleep-dulled minds grasped the situation, but rushed to the telephone, called the fire department, seized a bucket, filled it, grabbed a ladder and headed for the roof.

An unidentified truck driver also stopped and gave aid. Mrs. Hamilton did some bucket passing while her husband ran into the attic to fight the fire from the inside.

"We had it under control in a little while," Shrack told a reporter. "The fire department was there in 15 minutes. It would have gone fast if it had gotten a good start. It was an old fashioned frame house."

When the fire department took over, Shrack returned to his bus and brought his passengers to Cincinnati.

"We arrived 15 minutes behind schedule, but I don't think any of them missed their connections," Shrack said.

A few of them stopped to praise the man and said they didn't mind.

Shrack, who lives in Hillsboro, said a number of the passengers left the bus to watch the fire, while others stayed in their seats.

He said he did not know the Hamilton family.

Shrack, a bus driver for 31 years, just smiled when asked his age. "Just say I'm 39-plus," he replied.

White Man Held In Negro's Death

CINCINNATI (AP)—Prentice L. Meedings, 21, a white man, was held by police today for investigation following the fatal stabbing of Carl Lee Levell, 14, a Negro, Monday night.

The stabbing occurred in a street fight between Negro and white youths, the officers said.

Detective John Green told a reporter that Meedings told him he used the knife when he and his brother, Lester, 17, were chased by about eight boys.

The Levell boy was found lying on a sidewalk in the near downtown area. He had been stabbed between the ribs.

Turnpike Tax Exemption Decision Being Appealed

COLUMBUS (AP)—Attorneys for several private operators of gasoline stations and restaurants on the Ohio Turnpike claim the buildings are for public use only and thus are entitled to tax exemptions.

The State Board of Tax Appeals approved the exemptions for 1956, and ordered Cuyahoga County to cancel unpaid taxes for 1954 and 1955. Cuyahoga County appealed the order. The issue is under study by the Ohio Supreme Court.

Gov. George Docking and Harry Darby, former U. S. senator from Kansas, announced construction probably will start next year. The library will be across the street from the present Eisenhower Museum. The house where the Eisenhower family lived when Ike was a boy also is maintained as a national shrine in Abilene.

"Mary Hawthorth's Mail"

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a widow in my early forties, with a married son and a small grandson whom I adore. But I can't show him any love openly or around his mother, for then she says I am trying to alienate his affections.

I have tried every means to be friends with my daughter-in-law and get along with her; but I believe it is useless. I feel she resents me, and my own son can't come to see me except to obtain a favor. I don't go to visit them for these reasons—unless I am asked to. And when I am asked, it's to baby-sit.

I gave them the money to start housekeeping; and later furnished the baby's room completely, as my son couldn't afford it. I buy gifts for them, which are always accepted; but I can't show affection for my grandchild. If he reaches for me, his mother gets very angry and openly insults me, even before others.

Joyce had agreed to all the conditions of Stanley's faith before marriage. But now she has broken them all, and neither he nor she goes to church. She says church is only a graft. Stanley never says anything; and I believe he is only trying to keep peace with her. He did remark to me some time ago that he "will take only so much; and then leave." I don't want this to happen; but I can't understand her attitude.

I have discussed things with my pastor, who said he would speak to Joyce. But I told him no, for she would only insult him. He said that I've done too much for them; and they expect me to do for them the rest of my life. He advised me to just forget about them, as if they don't exist.

I've thought of selling out and moving to another state, to completely blot them out. But that, too, is hard to do. I am at my wit's end, and would like your advice.

DEAR D.R.: This is a case of two imperfect loves, fighting each other. I refer to your love and Joyce's love for the same persons. You know what Scripture says: "Fear hath torment; but perfect love casteth out fear." Joyce is afraid of your love for her husband and son—afraid that you'd swallow them up in your doting concern, and leave her only crumb of a chance to share love with them, if she didn't beat you off, and resist all you stand for (in her eyes).

However, let's face it, your love of the trio is imperfect too. Your son, daughter-in-law and grandson should be loved as a unit by you; but unfortunately you don't feel that way. You care about your son of course; and adore your grandson, as you say. But as for Joyce, she leaves you cold. I think she wouldn't have been your choice as a wife for your son—as she probably recognized from the start.

It is your unconscious rejection of Joyce that keeps her fighting you openly, thus fueling conscious hostility in you, to add to the mutual difficulty. To compensate, or overtake, the "loss" of your son to a woman you haven't liked, whom you regard as wrong for him, you've overdone the matter of being "good" to them—in terms of sacrificial giving: of time and gifts and money.

Your assiduous giving is probably not so much for their sake, genuinely, or for the child's sake, as for your own—to make up for the good will that you don't have for the marriage. Buried hostility and swallowed resentment in vital relationships often leaks out in terms of overweening solicitude, as regards the target-person. In your case, your inability to let go of your son's married life is probably in direct ratio to your dislike of his wife.

So the place to begin to solve the tension is within yourself. Take your pastor's advice. Turn your mind away from this specific frustration, and try to remove the obstacles in your thinking that are preventing you from leading a fuller life as a free woman—not tied down to family or child-cares. When your son and his household no longer dominate your thinking, you will relax spontaneously into a new and easier adjustment to his wife—thereby fetching her into a more relaxed accommodation to all of you. Try this recipe.

Ashtabula County Foundation Eyed

ASHTABULA (AP)—The Ashtabula County Probate Court is studying a proposal to establish a $1 million foundation to provide college scholarships for high school graduates of the county.

A petition to set up the foundation was filed Monday by trustees of a fund established in the will of George J. Record, a Conneaut industrialist who died in 1920. Use of estate funds set aside for educational purposes has been held up by court litigation.

The will also provided for establishment of a "polytechnic industrial school" or aid to an existing school of that type. No school has met the requirements specified in the will.

Christmas Toy Dispute Leads to Death of Pair

SIDNEY (AP)—Chester Daugherty, an unemployed construction worker, shot his wife Flora to death, then killed himself Tuesday night in an argument over a broken Christmas toy for one of their four children.

Daugherty and his wife were wrapping Christmas presents when Daugherty broke one. He and his wife began arguing and Daugherty left.

He returned home later and the argument resumed. Daugherty reached for a shotgun, shot his wife in the stomach, and then fired into his own temple, officers said.

Is Rock Hudson Hollywood King?

He Gets Nomination
To Succeed Clark Gable

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD — Is Rock Hudson the new king of Hollywood?

He has been nominated to inherit the mantle of the great Clark Gable, and the suggestion makes some sense. He is the first newcomer in many, many years to approach Gable in stature and virility. He is probably the most sought-after leading man in films today.

The measure of his strength is illustrated in the fact that he has been chosen by the powerful Theater Owners of America as the "Star of the Year." He was given the award at the TOA's convention in Miami last Saturday.

What does Rock think of this "king" business?

"I think it's nonsense," he replied. "I don't know how it got started, but I'd like to put a stop to it. Me king? Not on your life. Court jester, maybe."

If the kingly title sticks, Rock will be a monarch without rule. For he is the subject of Universal-International for the next five years, bag, baggage and-or crown.

This was a surprise to me, because I thought he would be coming to the end of his deal with the studio, where he started as an unknown a decade ago.

"It would have been over," he explained, "except for one thing: I wanted to do 'Giant.' It was too good an opportunity to pass up. But the only way the studio would let me do it was to sign up for another contract. So I did."

He is now paying off in service. At a lefty salary ($2,000 a week?), it's not bad duty. But he has been working steadily for 18 months, either with loanouts or pictures at U.I.

What's more, the loanouts provide only his usual salary. The studio collects the difference, and Rock figures he makes only one-tenth of what is charged for his services.

Texas Legislature Aids War Vet, 115

AUSTIN, Tex. — The Texas Legislature is taking action to make sure Confederate veteran Walter Williams, 115, keeps his $300 a month state pension.

The House unanimously passed a bill keeping his pension at that rate. Under existing law, Williams' pension would be cut to $200 because of the recent death of his wife. Rep. J. E. Winfree of Houston, where Williams now lives with a daughter, said the state Confederate pension fund totals more than $900,000.

Williams is one of two surviving veterans of the Civil War.

John S. Kim, director-conductor of the orchestra, said Korean audiences "truly appreciated" the appearance of the Ohioan because bass singers are very rare among Koreans.

Auto Mileage Figures Decline

In recent years an interesting trend in the American motorists are using their automobiles has become noticeable.

Although cars in use continue to increase, the distance traveled by each of those vehicles in the course of a year has tended to decrease. If this decline continues a point may be reached eventually where additions to the national pool of vehicles would not necessarily be reflected in increased automotive travel.

Two possible explanations are offered for the trend which is watched with understandable concern by oil and gasoline men as well as everyone else in the automotive supply and service fields.

The optimists blame it on highway congestion and expect the trend to change when more and better roads are built. Pessimists blame it on soaring motoring costs. They do not anticipate increased vehicle miles per car as long as inflation keeps pricing motorists off the roads.

Regardless of which school is right, one circumstance is abundantly plain. If highway congestion is to be greatly relieved the proposed 41,000-mile national highway network must be completed. But if that long-range construction program is ever consummated, taxes borne by motorists will increase greatly.

With indications that high motoring costs already are deterring some road users there could be a point of diminishing returns in the government's grandiose plans.

When the present federal highway plan was being considered it was already apparent that the increase in the gasoline tax and other road use taxes contemplated by Congress would bring in less than half the needed money. Former Treasury Secretary Humphrey warned Congress that more money would have to be found even as matters stood then. Since then standards have been raised and inflation has steadily increased construction costs.

Every month the passes makes it more apparent that the program can never be financed on the basis of present taxes. But the highway bill came before Congress in an election year. For that reason Congress didn't want to impose the taxes actually needed under the program envisaged.

Instead it inserted in the bill a provision saying that Congress should "enact legislation in order to bring about a balance of total receipts and total expenditures" if it later became evident that the original tax increase wouldn't carry the program.

Cost studies based on the intervening price inflation and improved highway design are now being made. A report which may show a shocking increase in the estimated cost of the interstate program is expected by January. Of course 1958 also is an election year and Congress may try to stall off a tax increase again.

But the facts must be faced eventually. If road use taxes are raised repeatedly the highway congestion they are intended to relieve may disappear long before the interstate system is built. Motorists who are keeping their cars in their driveways are demonstrating a most effective way of relieving highway congestion.

Mouse Walks Like a Man

By Hal Boyle

By SAUL PETT
(For Hal Boyle)

NEW YORK (AP) — Among the little things in life that try a man's soul is finding the courage of a sudden conviction or, more precisely, an explanation for his wife.

For example, it is 6:16 p.m., and our hero is out of the office but still downtown enjoying some spontaneous, unplanned relaxation. He has just had two drinks with the boys and the problem now is, not whether he will have more (because he will) but how to tell his wife.

He moves to the phone uncertainly because of a wavering sense of guilt. Against that guilt, the mouse tries to walk like a man, tries to stiffen his backbone with the solid (or almost solid) conviction that, darn it, he's got a night out coming to him.

Still, how does he tell her? How does he break the lyric news that between the two biggest pressure groups in his life—his office and his home—he has discovered a wonderful world of limbo, in which nothing is demanded of him except the courage to linger?

Can he tell the simple truth? He cannot, not at 6:16 p.m., when in his mind's eye he can see the roast in the oven, the gravy spilling over the pan, the kids fighting over the TV set and his wife desperate for a male bugler to blow taps in the snake pit.

So, what does he tell her? What do you? The answers, we find after a comprehensive survey, vary with profession and personality. Here are some: The paranoid career man—"Isn't it nauseating, sweetie? Eight hours a day, five days a week, the boss doesn't even say hello to me. And now, tonight, he wants to have a conference over a couple of drinks."

The exclamation—mark explainer—"You'll never guess who dropped into town! Talk about a small world! Talk about coincidence! Remember the one armed guard up at the lake who was so nice to the kids? Well, he's in town! The least I can do is buy him a couple of . . ."

The salesman on the verge of Armageddon—"Well, honey, we did it again! The commission should run into four figures. It's all sewed up—just about. Few more drinks and I'll have old J. M. in the bag."

The timid bookkeeper, or cold calculator—"Love, what kind of a day did you have? (10 minutes later). How awful! You must be exhausted. Why don't you just have a bowl of soup and go to bed now. No don't worry about my dinner. I'll pick up something in town."

The friend of man (the sneakiest sneak)—"Lord, I wish people wouldn't pile their troubles on me! Yeah, it's Charley and Jane again. Seems serious this time—Charley even used the word divorce. Insists I meet him tonight for couple of drinks. Thank goodness, darling, you and I have a better understanding."

Taxes Becoming Oppressive

By George Sokolsky

When a business has an extra expense, such as hiring another 50 clerks to make out detailed expense accounts for income tax purposes, it adds the cost to the price. Thus, the inflation is accelerated by bureaucratic fiat.

The small man, who cannot afford to hire a lot of accountants and to whom it is unbearably difficult to sit down each night to itemize 15 cents for a bus fare; $1.85 for five gallons of gasoline; $1.80 for two cocktails, one for the customer with whom he had to drink may be to get an order.

All right, so this was his experience over 20 years of spending about the same amount every day for getting business. So he charged himself an average of $10 a day for business expenses and he deducted that on his income tax return.

Now he has to write it all down in detail. When he buys a drink for a customer, he must pull out his little black book and note the drink, the cost of the drink, where it was drunk, what time of the day it was drunk and maybe why he drank it.

When he is through with all this each evening, he is psychologically an unfit man. He is sore at the world. He is antagonistic to everybody because he can't remember where that $1.35 went to. He can only account for $8.65 of expenses and he knows he cracked a $10.00 bill. Maybe he bought a toy for a customer's kid.

The small man is being driven daft by his tax problems. He knows that governments need money but he wants to know why there are so many who get away without paying taxes.

Some Congressional Committee ought to get together a list of all the categories of Americans who are exempt from income tax payments altogether; a list of tax havens should be published and how many individual Americans and American companies have taken advantage of them.

Does the American government know the names of Americans who are not paying taxes because they are legally tax-exempt? Is the American who lives and works and spends his money within the United States to be penalized in favor of Americans who live outside of the United States? What about that colony of rich American Communists who live in Mexico City, do they pay full income taxes? What about the rich American movie colonies in Rome and in Spain and elsewhere in Europe, do they pay full income taxes? What is the withholding tax on American dividends which is charged to Americans living in the United States who carry their accounts through Swiss and Venezuelan banks? These parasites live on the rest of us who do pay taxes. What are the obligations of accountants who make up tax returns which contain gimmicks for the legitimate evasion of taxes, which fancy lawyers call tax avoidance to save their consciences?

When an accountant certifies to the truth of a financial statement, does he include a sworn description of the tax evasion and tax avoidance gimmicks in the statement? Is it completely honest to leave out such details? Is it beneficial to the United States? Does it represent a fair shake for the fellow who year in and year out pays through the nose for a lot of boondoggling bureaucrats who crawl over each other in Washington and elsewhere and let the Russians put up two Sputniks while they battled each other as to who should do what?

Am I sore? Are you? It is bad enough to have to pay so much in taxes; it is bad enough to have to pay such an unjust and inequitable tax as the income tax; it is bad enough to know that other Americans have found a way to avoid and evade tax payments by lawful devices—do we have to suffer a punitive system of collection that makes for every kind of personal hardship and additional expense?

When a tax becomes so onerous in its method of collection that resentment mounts upon resentment, in a free society that tax will and must be abolished; in an autocratic or oligarchic society, it leads to revolution. It would seem that the Internal Revenue Bureau is aiming to have the income tax abolished by public demand.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

JIM STRALEY tells a tragic tale about a Chicago wolf who persuaded a cute chick he had met at a party to accompany him the next afternoon to see the Cubs play. She never showed up at the designated gate. What's more, she hung up on him when he phoned that evening. He rushed around to her apartment for an explanation, found her still seething. "You're a heel!" she said bitterly. "Make a date and then forget about it—and me waiting all afternoon at the zoo!"

Author Lynn Sumner uses this introduction to warm up his lecture audiences: "It's a great pleasure to speak in this auditorium—a word derived from two Latin roots: Audio, meaning I hear; and taurus, the bull."

An elementary school teacher asked her young charges to describe the taste of chocolate ice cream. She was particularly delighted with one answer. "Chocolate," explained this promising student, "tastes the opposite of vanilla."

Here's Low-Fat Breakfast

By German N. Bundesen, M.D.

Instead of discussing tomorrow's turkey dinner, let's talk about breakfast, a low-fat breakfast.

The older we get, the less fat our diet requires. I've often discussed this with you at great length.

Now, there appears to be some agreement among medical men that it's a good idea to cut down the fat intake of the diet for all ages.

A low-fat, low-cholesterol diet, if it provides the proper balance, seems to increase the chances for maintaining good health and might possibly even increase the life span somewhat.

For heart patients, it is customary for physicians to restrict the fat and cholesterol content of the diet.

For one thing, such patients on low-fat, low-cholesterol diets have fewer attacks. More important, they generally live longer than those permitted to eat our everyday high-fat diet.

Doctors also have found that arteriosclerosis is less apt to occur in persons eating low-fat, low-cholesterol diets.

But maintaining such a diet often is difficult, and breakfast is where many of those on low-fat diets go astray.

To help those of you on such diets, the following list of foods usually eaten at breakfast notes both the fat and cholesterol content.

Food	Fat (gm.)	Cholesterol (mg.)
Orange juice, 1/2 cup	0.2	—
Cereal, 1 oz. dry weight	0.6	—
Bread, white, 1 slice	0.9	0.8
Sugar, 1 tsp.	—	—
Butter, 1 tsp.	4.1	14.2
Milk, whole, 1 cup	9.5	32.9
Milk, skim, 1 cup	0.2	0.7
Egg, 1 medium	3.5	240.0
Bacon, cooked, 2 slices	8.8	16.0

As you can see, bacon, eggs and whole milk have a substantial fat and cholesterol content. So it might be a good idea to limit them, at least in part, if you are on a low-fat, low-cholesterol diet.

The basic cereal low-fat, low-cholesterol breakfast pattern probably consists of 1/2 cup of fresh orange juice, 1 ounce of cereal with 1/2 cup of whole milk and 1 tsp. of sugar, 2 slices of white bread with 1 tsp. of butter, 1 cup of skim milk, black coffee or tea.

If you want to cut the fat and cholesterol intake even more, you can use skim milk on the cereal.

Only 139 New Flu Cases Reported

COLUMBUS (AP)—Only 139 new influenza cases were reported in Ohio last week, the Ohio Department of Health reports.

This tended to hold up the belief of Ohio's health director, Dr. Ralph Dwork, that the influenza epidemic probably is leveling off. Last week the department also received reports of 15 deaths due to or related to influenza.

Dr. Dwork also said there have been 7,118 influenza cases reported to his department so far this year. In 79 cases Asian Flu has been confirmed by laboratory tests, but most cases are believed to be of the Asian variety.

The World Today

By James Marlow

WASHINGTON (AP)—What happens if President Eisenhower should become too disabled to carry out his duties? Would Vice President Nixon become acting president or president? If so, how? There's no agreed-on answer.

The Constitution itself is foggy on this point.

But it's the third time the question has arisen in a little over two years: After Eisenhower's heart attack; after his ileitis operation; and now again after his mild stroke. He himself asked Congress to clear up the fog. But it didn't.

If a president dies, the vice president becomes president. Seven vice presidents have become president that way. If a president is removed from office by Congress, the Constitution says the vice president succeeds him. That hasn't happened yet.

But this is where the Constitution is vague: it says in case of the "inability of a president to discharge the powers and duties of his office, they shall devolve on the vice president."

But that raises these questions: 1. What is the position of a vice president who acts as president? Does he thus become president, ousting the man who was elected to the job? What if the elected President recovers?

2. Just what is inability to discharge the duties of the presidency? Is there a time limit on how long a disabled president can remain in office before being succeeded by the vice president?

3. Who decides when the President is too disabled to do his job? And who decides when the disability ends and he can resume his office? The President? He couldn't if he were unconscious. The vice president? That might put him in the position of a usurper.

From what Eisenhower has said in public—in 1956 after his heart attack and again the same year after his operation—it might be concluded he would resign if he felt physically unfit for the job. But that's not positive.

He said: "There is going to be no neglect of the duties of the President of the United States; and when I feel I can't carry them on, I won't be there."

"If at any time I have any reason to believe that I am not fit, as I believe myself to be now, I will come before the American public and tell them . . ."

It might be Eisenhower's intention to quit if he felt unfit. But suppose he was only temporarily unfit, although the unfitness lasted for months in which the whole direction of the government suffered. Suppose he felt sure he would recover and therefore did not step aside for the vice president?

What happens to the presidency and its duties then?

There were two presidents—Garfield and Wilson—who remained in office during periods they were physically unfit for it. In neither case did the people around those presidents let the vice presidents take over.

Garfield, shot by an assassin in 1881, lingered 80 days; Wilson, who collapsed in 1919, remained in office until the end of his term in 1921, although he had been paralyzed on one side.

Those around Garfield and Wilson feared that if their vice presidents took over the presidential duties they would by doing so oust the presidents.

Through his former attorney general, Herbert Brownell, Eisenhower earlier this year asked Congress to propose an amendment to the Constitution making clear once and for all how a vice president should take over presidential duties in cases of disability. As it did before, Congress talked about it and did nothing.

Brownell told Congress: "Unless the President, his Cabinet and his other friends are absolutely certain of his status after the termination of his inability, they will tend to oppose any attempt to declare the existence of inability, viewing such a declaration as equivalent to removing the President from office."

Members of Congress have argued through the years that once a vice president assumes presidential duties, he is president, even though the elected President recovers. This is based on the belief there cannot be two presidents at the same time.

Brownell argued: "presidential disability severe and prolonged enough to warrant the devolution of presidential power on the vice president would create something of a crisis itself."

But suppose a president is unconscious and can't know he's unfit? Who decides the vice president should take over? No one has the answer, at least not an undisputed answer.

New Forum Members Hear Talk on Local Problems

Judge Cline Is Speaker

Judge Guy C. Cline presented the basic problems of our social agencies and what can be done to improve them at the Circleville Forum meeting Tuesday afternoon. He said the number of juvenile delinquent cases heard are approximately 200 a year. What can be done to prevent these children from ever entering a court room? Judge Cline suggested increased playground supervision, church programs to reach beyond their church members to those who are not affiliated, and active clubs to supply more recreation and guidance such as Young Men's Christian Association or Big Brothers Association.

Aid to Dependent Children, foster homes, and the county children's home were discussed. The placing of children in foster homes not only gives the child a family unit to live in but is cheaper than placing them in the County Children's Home. The point of the advisability of maintaining a children's home is questionable.

He told the group about the aged people in the county home and the lack of facilities at the home. The group will visit the aged home Dec. 3 to see what conditions are and to find out what can be done to give them some joy at Christmas.

Mrs. Kenneth Incent was asked to attend the Community Improvement Association meeting in December and bring a report to our club.

Members present were: Mrs. Sterling Poling, Mrs. Hal Dickinson, Mrs. Norman Kuttler, Mrs. Robert Anderson, Mrs. Thomas Matesky, Mrs. Horace Luton, Mrs. Louis Wuest, and Mrs. Kenneth Incent.

Mt. Pleasant Garden Club Exhibits Swags

The Mt. Pleasant Garden Club met at the home of Mrs. John Fisher, Kingston, with ten members present. Miss Gertrude Senff was welcomed as a new member. Roll call was answered by "The Color I like most in Christmas arrangements."

President Loring Hill announced that Mrs. Marvin Jones had won second highest in points awarded at the flower show of the Circleville Pumpkin Festival.

Mrs. W. R. Sunderland reminded members of two Christmas flower shows which they may plan to attend: The Solauqua Garden Club of Ashville is sponsoring one on December 6, and the Deercreek Garden Club of Williamsport on December 10.

An amendment to the constitution was passed to open club membership for out-of-county residents. It was decided to give $12.00 toward the aid of a needy home at Christmas.

Members judged Christmas door swag arrangements brought to the meeting, with first place going to Miss Grace Dresbach, second place to Miss Senff, and third to Mrs. Wayne Delong. Hill then commented on each arrangement.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Charles Kimmel, Kingston, December 30, with husbands as guests for a covered dish dinner.

Women's Assn. To Meet Tonight

Mrs. Lawrence Johnson, president Pickaway County Assn. of Women's Clubs will preside at the meeting tonight when the association convenes at 8 p. m. in the Sessions Room of the Presbyterian Church. The executive board will meet in the same place at 7:30 p. m.

Commercial Point Garden Club To Have Toy Party

The Commercial Point Garden Club met Nov. 21, at the home of Mrs. Francis Hoover, with assisting hostess Mrs. Albert Alloy.

Christmas napkins will be given to the class to sell. Patty Gibbs, Jill Jenkins, Teresa Smith, and Jack Hatz were in charge of games. Prizes were

Is Rock Hudson Hollywood King?

He Gets Nomination
To Succeed Clark Gable

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD — Is Rock Hudson the new king of Hollywood?

He has been nominated to inherit the mantle of the great Clark Gable, and the suggestion makes some sense. He is the first newcomer in many, many years to approach Gable in stature and virility. He is probably the most sought-after leading man in films today.

The measure of his strength is illustrated in the fact that he has been chosen by the powerful Theater Owners of America as the "Star of the Year." He was given the award at the TOA's convention in Miami last Saturday.

What does Rock think of this "king" business?

"I think it's nonsense," he replied. "I don't know how it got started, but I'd like to put a stop to it. Me king? Not on your life. Court jester, maybe."

If the kingly title sticks, Rock will be a monarch without rule. For he is the subject of Universal-International for the next five years, bag, baggage and-or crown.

This was a surprise to me, because I thought he would be coming to the end of his deal with the studio, where he started as an unknown a decade ago.

"It would have been over," he explained, "except for one thing: I wanted to do 'Giant.' It was too good an opportunity to pass up. But the only way the studio would let me do it was to sign up for another contract. So I did."

He is now paying off in servitude. At a lefty salary ($2,000 a week?), it's not bad duty. But he has been working steadily for 18 months, either with loanouts or pictures at U-I.

What's more, the loanouts provide only his usual salary. The studio collects the difference, and Rock figures he makes only one-tenth of what is charged for his services.

Texas Legislature Aids War Vet, 115

AUSTIN, Tex. — The Texas Legislature is taking action to make sure Confederate veteran Walter Williams, 115, keeps his $300 a month state pension.

The House unanimously passed a bill keeping his pension at that rate. Under existing law, Williams' pension would be cut to $200 because of the recent death of his wife. Rep. J. E. Winfree of Houston, where Williams now lives with a daughter, said the state Confederate pension fund totals more than $900,000.

Williams is one of two surviving veterans of the Civil War.

Ohio Bass Singer Hailed by Koreans

SEOUL — A 1st Cavalry Division soldier who won over Korean music lovers as bass soloist with the Seoul Symphony Orchestra is beginning a singing tour of two U. S. divisions north of here.

Pfc. Cullen Maiden of Delaware, Ohio, first appeared with the orchestra in Seoul Oct. 5 and again Nov. 25-26 after many requests by Korean fans.

John S. Kim, director-conductor of the orchestra, said Korean audiences "truly appreciated" the appearance of the Ohioan because bass singers are very rare among Koreans.

Tigers Ready for Athens Opener

Friday's Contest First View Of Coach Dick Boyd's Squad

Circleville High School's cage tigers are all set to kick the lid off the 1957-58 season here Friday night.

The Tigers' opposition will be furnished by the Bulldogs of Athens. The reserve tilt is slated to start at 7 p. m., with the varsity battle carded at about 8 p. m.

According to Coach Dick Boyd his charges are showing some promising potential in pre-season practice. A delight for Boyd is the fact he will have three returning lettermen reaching the 6-foot mark or better.

Heading the corps of veterans is big Jon Parcher, regular center last year, who measures in at 6-5. Bolstering Parcher are Bill Johnson at 6-3 and Mike Hosler standing six feet.

JOHNSON saw service last year as a starting forward and Hosler

performed at a starting guard berth.

So far in practice Coach Boyd has been using senior John Wright, a varsityman last year, and junior Walt Arledge to round out the probable starting Tiger lineup. Arledge was a mainstay on last year's reserve squad.

Don Rowland and Asa Elsea, also members of last year's reserve team, probably will see plenty of action as varsitymen this year. Another able replacement is Nelson Kelly, a fierce senior.

Other varsity candidates battling for recognition are Roger Koch, Bill Purcell, Cal Ellis, Joe Adkins, Brent Bell and Dick Smith, the latter a 6-1 sophomore.

Coach John Current's reserve squad, made up of freshmen and sophomores, will feature some height and plenty of hustle.

Sophomore Bob Shadley stands 6-2, Larry Hannahs 6-1, and Dan Leonard and Harry Strawser six feet.

NOT much is known about visiting Athens, although the Bulldogs have eight seniors, three juniors and one sophomore on the varsity squad. The Tigers will be seeking revenge for a defeat suffered at Athens last year.

Here are the Tiger varsity and reserve rosters:

Navy Is 3-Point Choice Over Army

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The football experts rate Navy a three-point favorite over Army in the 58th renewal of the service classic here Saturday, but fans trying to pick the winner have to decide how that slim margin stacks up against such unforeseeable factors as team spirit and the breaks.

Spirit alone has won for both sides in the past, and breaks have decided other meetings.

The weather, too, could be a factor. The gridiron prophets base their calculations on the expectation that the Middies' aerial game will prove superior to Army's ground attack. Rain or windy weather could alter that picture.

Defense Is Changed And Just in Time Too

SAN ANTONIO, TEX. (AP)—Coach C. R. Anderson of Texas Military Institute didn't like the way his basketball team's zone defense was working Tuesday. So early in the game he changed to a man-to-man defense which worked fine. Final score: Texas Military 63, San Antonio Southside High 1.

Mt. Sterling Scores Victory Over Wildcats

Mt. Sterling opened up its 1957-58 basketball season with a 58-41 victory over winless Jackson, which dropped its second game.

Mt. Sterling jumped to a 16 to 4 lead in the first quarter as Jackson couldn't get started. The Wildcats started working as a unit in the second period and fell behind 35 to 15.

Mt. Sterling had a team that averaged 6-2 and used its height to the utmost advantage even though Atwood played a good rebounding game. The Madison Countians were played on an even basis in the third period with each team garnering 10 points.

Jackson hit its stride in the final quarter outscoring Mt. Sterling 16 to 13, but couldn't overcome the poor showing in the first half. Again as in their first game the Wildcats came alive in the second half and outplayed their opponents, but the first half deficit was too much to make up.

Mt. Sterling was a big awkward ball club, but sported too much height for the little Wildcats.

Scioto's Roger Knapp Leads Cagers with 27-Point Mark

Scioto's stumpy Roger Knapp has dunked 135 points in his five games to date and currently leads Pickaway County basketball scorers with a snazzy 27.0 points per game average.

Knapp, a 5-8 senior and co-captain of the Buffaloes, has led his unit to a 4-1 season record with his out-front shooting.

No. 2 scorer in the county is Darby's Ron Guthrie, a sparkling 6-3 senior, who garnered his 22 points in Darby's only game to date against Ashville.

John Lininger, New Holland center, a 6-3 senior slicker, is currently third in the scoring race with 78 points in four games for a 19.5 average. Gary Valentine, 6-2 senior of Salt Creek is No. 4 scorer with 112 markers in six contests for an 18.7 mark. No. 5 is Dave Myers, Williamsport's chunky dead-eye, with 73 points in four tilts for an 18.2 mark.

IN THE top 20 scorers in Pickaway County are all five Williamsport starters, the best team showing up to the present time. Every one of the Deer regulars has averaged more than 10 points a game.

Jackson Twp. has three men in the top 20. At this stage of the season every team has played at least once. One — Salt Creek — already has six contests under its belt.

New Forum Members Hear Talk on Local Problems

Judge Cline Is Speaker

Judge Guy C. Cline presented the basic problems of our social agencies and what can be done to improve them at the Circleville Forum meeting Tuesday afternoon. He said the number of juvenile delinquent cases heard are approximately 200 a year. What can be done to prevent these children from ever entering a court room? Judge Cline suggested increased playground supervision, church programs to reach beyond their church members to those who are not affiliated, and active clubs to supply more recreation and guidance such as Young Men's Christian Association or Big Brothers Association.

Aid to Dependent Children, foster homes, and the county children's home were discussed. The placing of children in foster homes not only gives the child a family unit to live in but is cheaper than placing them in the County Children's Home. The point of the advisability of maintaining a children's home is questionable.

He told the group about the aged people in the county home and the lack of facilities at the home. The group will visit the aged home Dec. 3 to see what conditions are and to find out what can be done to give them some joy at Christmas.

Mrs. Kenneth Incent was asked to attend the Community Improvement Association meeting in December and bring a report to our club.

Members present were: Mrs. Sterling Poling, Mrs. Hal Dickinson, Mrs. Norman Kutler, Mrs. Robert Anderson, Mrs. Thomas Matesky, Mrs. Horace Lutton, Mrs. Louis Wuest, and Mrs. Kenneth Incent.

Mt. Pleasant Garden Club Exhibits Swags

The Mt. Pleasant Garden Club met at the home of Mrs. John Fisher, Kingston, with ten members present. Miss Gertrude Senff was welcomed as a new member.

Roll call was answered by "The Color I like most in Christmas arrangements."

President Loring Hill announced that Mrs. Marvin Jones had won second highest in points awarded at the flower show of the Circleville Pumpkin Festival.

Mrs. W. R. Sunderland reminded members of two Christmas flower shows which they may plan to attend: The Soliqua Garden Club of Ashville is sponsoring one on December 6, and the Deere Creek Garden Club of Williamsport on December 10.

An amendment to the constitution was passed to open club membership for out-of-county residents. It was decided to give $12.00 toward the aid of a needy home at Christmas.

Members judged Christmas door swag arrangements brought to the meeting, with first place going to Miss Grace Dresbach, second place to Miss Senff, and third to Mrs. Wayne Delong. Hill then commented on each arrangement.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Charles Kimmel, Kingston, December 30, with husbands as guests for a covered dish dinner.

Women's Assn. To Meet Tonight

Mrs. Lawrence Johnson, president Pickaway County Assn. of Women's Clubs will preside at the meeting tonight when the association convenes at 8 p. m. in the Sessions Room of the Presbyterian Church. The executive board will meet in the same place at 7:30 p. m.

Tigers Ready for Athens Opener

Friday's Contest First View Of Coach Dick Boyd's Squad

Circleville High School's cage tigers are all set to kick the lid off the 1957-58 season here Friday night.

The Tigers' opposition will be furnished by the Bulldogs of Athens. The reserve tilt is slated to start at 7 p. m., with the varsity battle carded at about 8 p. m.

According to Coach Dick Boyd his charges are showing some promising potential in pre-season practice. A delight for Boyd is the fact he will have three returning lettermen reaching the 6-foot mark or better.

Heading the corps of veterans is big Jon Pacher, regular center last year, who measures in at 6-5. Bolstering Pacher are Bill Johnson at 6-3 and Mike Hosler standing six feet.

JOHNSON saw service last year as a starting forward and Hosler

performed at a starting guard berth.

So far in practice Coach Boyd has been using senior John Wright, a varsityman last year, and junior Walt Arledge to round out the probable starting Tiger lineup. Arledge was a mainstay on last year's reserve squad.

Don Rowland and Asa Elsea, also members of last year's reserve team, probably will see plenty of action as varsitymen this year. Another able replacement is Nelson Kelly, a fierce senior.

Other varsity candidates battling for recognition are Roger Koch, Bill Purcell, Cal Ellis, Joe Adkins, Brent Bell and Dick Smith, the latter a 6-1 sophomore.

Coach John Current's reserve squad, made up of freshmen and sophomores, will feature some height and plenty of hustle.

Sophomore Bob Shadley stands 6-2, Larry Hannahs 6-1, and Dan Leonard and Harry Strawser six feet.

NOT much is known about visiting Athens, although the Bulldogs have eight seniors, three juniors and one sophomore on the varsity squad. The Tigers will be seeking revenge for a defeat suffered at Athens last year.

Here are the Tiger varsity and reserve rosters:

Navy Is 3-Point Choice Over Army

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The football experts rate Navy a three-point favorite over Army in the 58th renewal of the service classic here Saturday, but fans trying to pick the winner have to decide how that slim margin stacks up against such unforeseeable factors as team spirit and the breaks.

Spirit alone has won for both sides in the past, and breaks have decided other meetings.

The weather, too, could be a factor. The gridiron prophets base their calculations on the expectation that the Middies' aerial game will prove superior to Army's ground attack. Rain or windy weather could alter that picture.

Defense Is Changed And Just in Time Too

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—Coach C. R. Anderson of Texas Military Institute didn't like the way his basketball team's zone defense was working Tuesday. So early in the game he changed to a man-to-man defense which worked fine. Final score: Texas Military 63, San Antonio Southside High 1.

Mt. Sterling Scores Victory Over Wildcats

Mt. Sterling opened up its 1957-58 basketball season with a 58-41 victory over winless Jackson, which dropped its second game.

Mt. Sterling jumped to a 16-4 lead in the first quarter as Jackson couldn't get started. The Wildcats started working as a unit in the second period and fell behind 35 to 15.

Mt. Sterling had a team that averaged 6-2 and used its height to the utmost advantage even though Atwood played a good rebounding game. The Madison Countians were played on an even basis in the third period with each team garnering 10 points.

Jackson hit its stride in the final quarter outscoring Mt. Sterling 16 to 13, but couldn't overcome the poor showing in the first half. Again as in their first game the Wildcats came alive in the second half and outplayed their opponents, but the first half deficit was too much to make up.

Mt. Sterling was a big awkward ball club, but spotted too much height for the little Wildcats.

Army's Star Half Also Is 'Egghead'

WEST POINT, N. Y. (AP)—Pete Dawkins, one of Army's "Touchdown Twins" is a man to confound the eggheads who say football is all brawn and no brain.

Rated in the top five per cent of his class (1959) on academic grounds, the 19-year-old halfback from Royal Oak, Mich., is rated a superior student and excellent officer material.

He is 10th among the nation's scorers in major college football with 11 touchdowns for 66 points. His running mate, sophomore Bob Anderson is the No. 1 man in the country with 14 touchdowns and 84 points.

Franz Szuzina, Bremen, Germany middleweight, formerly worked as a carpenter. He now lives at Valley Stream, N. Y.

Bob Buhl of the Milwaukee Braves beat the Brooklyn Dodgers 12 times in 14 decisions during the last two seasons.

The Pimlico Special is best remembered as the match race that produced Sea Biscuit's upset of War Admiral in 1938.

Scioto's Roger Knapp Leads Cagers with 27-Point Mark

Scioto's stumpy Roger Knapp has dunked 135 points in his five games to date and currently leads Pickaway County basketball scorers with a snazzy 27.0 points per game average.

Knapp, a 5-8 senior, and co-captain of the Bulldogs, has led his unit to a 4-1 season record with his out-front shooting.

No. 2 scorer in the county is Darby's Ron Guthrie, a sparkling 6-3 senior, who garnered his 22 points in Darby's only game to date against Ashville.

John Lininger, New Holland center, a 6-3 senior slicker, is currently third in the scoring race with 78 points in four games for a 19.5 average. Gary Valentine, 6-2 senior of Salt Creek is No. 4 scorer with 112 markers in six contests for an 18.7 mark. No. 5 is Dave Myers, Williamsport's chunky dead-eye, with 73 points in four tilts for an 18.2 mark.

IN THE top 20 scorers in Pickaway County are all five Williamsport starters, the best team showing up to the present time. Every one of the Deer regulars has averaged more than 10 points a game.

Jackson Twp. has three men in the top 20. At this stage of the season every team has played at least once. One — Salt Creek — already has six contests under its belt.

Two Area Fives In Tilts Tonight

Two area basketball teams are scheduled for contests tonight.

Groveport visits Walnut and Laurelville travels to Gibsonville.

Walnut will attempt to break into the win column after a 61-42 defeat at the hands of New Holland Friday night. Laurelville will be seeking its fifth straight win.

Pickaway outscored St. Marys 15 to 13 in the final period but Lancaster's tremendous third quarter assured them the victory. Lancaster emptied their bench in the fourth period, or the score may have been much higher in their favor.

Pickaway joins the ranks, along with Ashville, Jackson and Walnut, of teams who are suffering on the hardwood, due to tightness caused by the bruising game of football. Only Darby seems to be in good basketball shape.

Evans led Pickaway with 11 points. Lancaster was led by Sticksford and Weinsmantal with 17 and 10 points respectively.

The Pimlico Special is best remembered as the match race that produced Sea Biscuit's upset of Admiral in 1938.

The Rural Mailbox

By George Hamrick
Pickaway County Agent

Dear County Agent:

"I have noticed my dairy cows rubbing on the stanchions and support posts on the loafing shed. I've observed them very close and I believe they have lice. Since I've noticed them rubbing so much I've also noticed that their production has dropped about 75 pounds per day for the herd.

"How might I get rid of these pests and how can I prevent future outbreaks?"

Sincerely,
A Pickaway County Farmer

"This is the season of the year that lice can play 'havoc' with the production of a dairy herd. Lice control practices should be used early in the fall for a head start on the pests.

"Cattle infected with lice rub and scratch against fences, stanchions, and other objects, often causing bruises. Close examination of cattle will reveal lice crawling among the hairs. Lice are a year-round problem, however, damage is usually most severe in late winter and early spring.

"Since good management has an effect in controlling lice, cattle should be well fed, kept in clean well-ventilated stables, and not overcrowded.

"The severity of an outbreak can be reduced somewhat by clipping the cow. This clipping should be done around the head and withers and along the backbone to the tailhead. The clipping of the backbone should be about 6 inches wide. The house must seek moisture around the tailhead and, with the amount of hair reduced down the backbone, it makes for bad travel conditions for him.

"To control an outbreak may require spraying or dusting. Bee f cattle may be dusted with .5 per cent rotenone, or 5 per cent DDT powder, about 3 ounces of the powder needs to be rubbed in the hair of each mature animal. Spraying may be done also, but should be done before cold weather.

"Cleaning and spraying stables and separating the treated from untreated cattle will also help control lice.

"For lice control on dairy cattle, the only effective material now approved by Federal laws is rotenone, DDT, lindane, and other materials are no longer acceptable for use on dairy animals because these materials are known to contaminate milk."

Very Truly,
Your County Agent

JOHN GRIERSON

Kansas City Star Bows to U.S. Order

KANSAS CITY (AP)—The Kansas City Star has contracted to sell its radio and television stations, WDAF and WDAF-TV, to National Theaters, Inc. for $7,600,000.

The sale will put the Star in compliance with a federal court order issued Nov. 15 requiring it to divest itself of its radio.

The newspaper and its advertising director, Emil Sees, were convicted under the antitrust laws in February 1955 on charges of monopolizing news and advertising in the Kansas City area.

Gasoline Barge Fire Taints Drinking Water

CINCINNATI (AP)—Folks living along the upper Ohio River may find drinking water may not taste very good for the next 10 days or more.

That's because of a tremendous gasoline barge fire Saturday near Woodsfield. It spilled gasoline and other oil products into the river, according to Edward J. Cleary, executive secretary of the Ohio River Valley Water Sanitation Commission.

Let's All Go Shopping!

By MRS. LEORA SAYRE
Home Economics Agent
Extension Service

Let's all make a more concentrated effort to shop for and use nutrition, even though puzzled and amazed by those increasing new and different forms of food items.

If one wants to pay that extra price for the built-in services, there's not much labor or homemaking glory to preparing and serving a meal. These extras must be popular as figures show that $6 million were spent for those extra services last year.

Food shoppers in this country are mainly concerned with two problems when they go to the store. They must select items for which they have enough money to pay—probably the No. 1 problem for many. For those not handicapped by this necessity, the main problem is choosing between the many items available.

In this country we have a lot of food service, surplus and waste. But, are we making any real progress?

A review by Dr. R. W. Sherman, Department of Agriculture Economics and Rural Sociology of OSU says that even though surpluses may have plagued us for years, little progress has been made in adequately feeding the people throughout the world.

FOOD PRODUCTION has been increasing in most of the world but the population has grown about 2 or 3 per cent more in the past 20 years than has the food production.

Statistics tell us that less than six per cent of world food production enters world trade. This is due mainly to the fact that nations with food shortages are too poor to buy very much. Countries with surpluses like our own can sell only limited quantities to such nations and are, therefore, unable to help them substantially. Authorities say that until productivity increases in the food shortage countries their problems seem hopeless.

Now is the time to make apple jelly for those edible gifts during the Christmas season. This fall's plentiful crop provides a lot of raw product for apple spreads of varying construction. Let's use this surplus.

For gift, partying, or just at-home use cookie making, there is a nice variety of chip help available. We're all familiar with chocolate chips. But how many of us have met cherry, lemon custard, or butterscotch chips? None of these chips have to be a part of a baked product to be enjoyed!

Can we each claim to be eligible

BARBARA MCKENZIE

Pickaway Girl To Visit 4-H National Meet

Barbara McKenzie will represent Pickaway County at the 36th National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago Sunday through Thursday. She is one of 30 delegates from Ohio awarded this experience in recognition of a good all-round 4-H record of achievement and general activities and especially outstanding accomplishments in one category of endeavor.

About 1,600 delegates from the 48 states, Alaska, Hawaii and Puerto Rico will attend the Congress.

Miss McKenzie, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence McKenzie of Route 1, was awarded the trip to the National Congress as State Winner in the 4-H canning program. Her all-expense paid trip is provided by the Kerr Glass Manufacturing Corp.

At the Congress, the delegates will participate in discussions, religious services, hear talks by leaders in industry and agriculture, be entertained by popular artists, and attend numerous luncheon and dinner meetings.

to belong to the club of wise shoppers and consumers of food items?

If so, can we each, at the end of every day, say that we've had a balanced diet? This balance incorporates fruits, including citrus; green and yellow vegetables; meat, poultry, or fish; eggs, cereals; milk and or milk products; fats and sweets.

Do you remember this important part of a small verse on vitamins?

Mastitis Theme Of Dairy Meet

Farmers Planning
University Session

Dairymen will hear some of the nation's top authorities on mastitis control speak at an Ohio Dairyman's Assn. meeting Saturday in Plumb Hall on the Ohio State University campus.

Mastitis, a disease of dairy cattle, causes heavier losses in production than any other two or three troubles, according to George Hamrick, county agricultural agent.

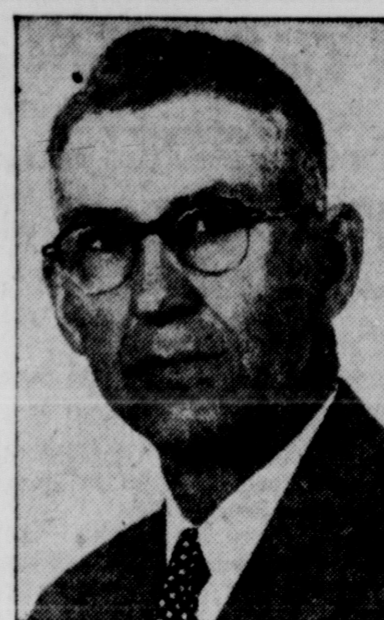

Dr. J. J. Reid, noted bacteriologist of Pennsylvania State University, will speak at 1:15 p. m. on "Bug Chasing Will Not Control Mastitis." A panel headed by C. D. McGrew, Extension dairy specialist, will discuss antibiotics and their use in mastitis control. Dr. T. D. Harman, of Circleville and of the dairy technology department will talk on the effects of antibiotics on milk and Dr. Samuel Saslaw of University Hospital of their effects on human health.

Speakers at the morning session will include W. B. Wood, director of the Agricultural Extension Service, and Dr. Fordyce Ely, chairman of Ohio State's dairy department. A business meeting also is scheduled.

Dairy Farmers of Pickaway County interested in attending as a group, should contact Hamrick.

The Queen of the Furrow, Miss Ann Lane from Delta, who reigned over the 1957 World's Conservation Exposition and Plowing Contest, will announce the winners of the Soil Conservation Essay Contest and present the top three winners with trophies.

4-H CLUB NEWS

By Clarence Cunningham

Would you like to attend the College of Agriculture or the School of Home Economics at the Ohio State University? Do you think you will need some financial assistance? If you have good grades in school and have been active in youth activities you have a chance to receive a scholarship when entering either of the above colleges.

Yes, over 70 scholarships are available to high school seniors who are interested, but you must act soon. If you want to take the competitive examination (20 scholarships are given on this basis), you will want to notify your local school administrator before December 1. The test will be given the same day as the general scholarship test in this county.

Other scholarships are available on application and in all cases must be submitted by Mar. 15, 1958. Contact your local teachers or the Extension Office for further information.

Many other colleges and universities have scholarships available but you must contact these schools soon if you are interested.

The 4-H club program in Pickaway County is nearly over for 1957, but we must look ahead to the coming year. One of the first activities in 1958 will be the organization of tractor clubs.

The 4-H tractor club emphasizes the "care" of tractors and machinery and not the "repair". Topics to be covered in meetings include: cooling systems, lubrication, ignition, safety, carburation, and many other adjustments and care the farmer can do to keep the tractor running.

In addition to learning about tractors, members become eligible to enter the county tractor operators contest. The 1957 Pickaway County winner, Nathan Wilson, received first in the state contest which made him eligible to compete in the regional contest in Kansas where he placed sixth. Why not join and have the 1958 winner from this county?

If you are between 14 and 20 and have access to a tractor you are eligible to join a 4-H tractor club.

Those members interested should contact the Agriculture Extension Service soon. We need an estimated number who are interested so it can be determined if there should be a county-wide club or local area clubs.

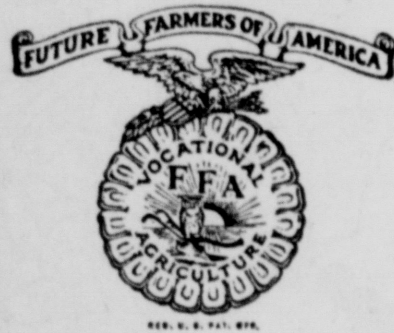

Lake Water Diversion Gets Lausche's OK

CLEVELAND (AP)—"Fresh water is now the critical and indispensable material for the continued growth of northern Ohio," U. S. Sen. Frank Lausche of Ohio stated in a letter to the Lake Erie Watershed Conservation Foundation.

The Foundation's plan to divert Lake Erie water to an eight-county area in northeastern Ohio "contains the solution of the problem," said the letter received Tuesday by John H. Byrne, Foundation executive director.

State Aide Transfers

COLUMBUS (AP)—W. Ronald Ansley of Worthington has been named personnel supervisor in the Department of Highway Safety at a salary of $9,000 a year. He is former personnel director for the Ohio Liquor Department.

Pickaway County FFA members demonstrated their abilities in business procedure in the district contests held at Groveport recently. This is another phase of the instruction received by vocational agriculture students who make up the membership of the Future Farmers of America.

Teams representing the Fox FFA at Jackson, the Scioto FFA at Scioto, and the Walnut FFA at Walnut demonstrated at the district meet. The demonstrating team consists of not less than eight nor more than 12 boys and it must demonstrate proficiency in handling a regular business meeting.

Procedures include opening the meeting, receiving and disposing of officers reports, committee reports, to take from the table, a motion to reconsider, other items of unfinished business, appeal from the decision of the chair, motion to adjourn, to refer to a committee, to table a motion, an amendment to a motion, to rescind an action, and to leave the chair and return at a later date.

Many teams in the district were hampered by illness of key personnel, but most teams showed desirable leadership abilities.

Walnut received a gold rating. The team was directed from the chair by Roger Schneider, Dave Reigel and Ted Young. Jackson (Fox) received a silver rating. Directing the team from the chair was Jerry Brigner, Charles Galloway and Thomas Walker. Scioto received a bronze rating and was directed from the chair by Don Linden, Ernest Milburn and Mike Roese.

The Rural Mailbox

By George Hamrick
Pickaway County Agent

Dear County Agent:

"I have noticed my dairy cows rubbing on the stanchions and support posts on the loafing shed. I've observed them very close and I believe they have lice. Since I've noticed them rubbing so much I've also noticed that their production has dropped about 75 pounds per day for the herd.

"How might I get rid of these pests and how can I prevent future outbreaks?"

Sincerely,
A Pickaway County Farmer

Dear Farmer:
"This is the season of the year that lice can play 'havoc' with the production of a dairy herd. Lice control practices should be used early in the fall for a head start on the pests.

"Cattle infected with lice rub and scratch against fences, stanchions, and other objects, often causing bruises. Close examination of cattle will reveal lice crawling among the hairs. Lice are a year-round problem, however, damage is usually most severe in late winter and early spring.

"Since good management has an effect in controlling lice, cattle should be well fed, kept in clean well-ventilated stables, and not overcrowded.

"The severity of an outbreak can be reduced somewhat by clipping the cow. This clipping should be done around the head and withers and along the backbone to the tailhead. The clipping of the backbone should be about 6 inches wide. The louse must seek moisture around the tailhead and, with the amount of hair reduced down the backbone, it makes for bad travel conditions for him.

"To control an outbreak may require spraying or dusting. Beef cattle may be dusted with .5 per cent rotenone, or 5 per cent DDT powder, about 3 ounces of the powder needs to be rubbed in the hair of each mature animal. Spraying may be done also, but should be done before cold weather.

"Cleaning and spraying stables and separating the treated from untreated cattle will also help control lice.

"For lice control on dairy cattle, the only effective material now approved by Federal laws is rotenone. DDT, lindane, and other materials are no longer acceptable for use on dairy animals because these materials are known to contaminate milk."

Very Truly,
Your County Agent

Kansas City Star Bows to U.S. Order

KANSAS CITY (AP)—The Kansas City Star has contracted to sell its radio and television stations, WDAF and WDAF-TV, to National Theaters, Inc. for $7,600,000.

The sale will put the Star in compliance with a federal court order issued Nov. 15 requiring it to divest itself of its radio.

The newspaper and its advertising director, Emil Sees, were convicted under the antitrust laws in February 1955 on charges of monopolizing news and advertising in the Kansas City area.

Gasoline Barge Fire Taints Drinking Water
CINCINNATI (AP)—Folks living along the upper Ohio River may find drinking water may not taste very good for the next 10 days or more.

That's because of a tremendous gasoline barge fire Saturday near Woodfield. It spilled gasoline and other oil products into the river, according to Edward J. Cleary, executive secretary of the Ohio River Valley Water Sanitation Commission.

Let's All Go Shopping!

By MRS. LEORA SAYRE
Home Economics Agent
Extension Service

Let's all make a more concentrated effort to shop for and use nutritious, even though puzzled and amazed by those increasing new and different forms of food items.

If one wants to pay that extra price for the built-in services, there's not much labor or homemaking glory to preparing and serving a meal. These extras must be popular as figures show that $6 million were spent for those extra services last year.

Food shoppers in this country are mainly concerned with two problems when they go to the store. They must select items for which they have enough money to pay—probably the No. 1 problem for many. For those not handicapped by this necessity, the main problem is choosing between the many items available.

In this country we have a lot of food service, surplus and waste. But, are we making any real progress?

A review by Dr. R. W. Sherman, Department of Agriculture Economics and Rural Sociology of OSU says that even though surpluses may have plagued us for years, little progress has been made in adequately feeding the people throughout the world.

FOOD PRODUCTION has been increasing in most of the world but the population has grown about 2 or 3 per cent more in the past 20 years than has the food production.

Statistics tell us that less than six per cent of world food production enters world trade. This is due mainly to the fact that nations with food shortages are too poor to buy very much. Countries with surpluses like our own can sell only limited quantities to such nations and are, therefore, unable to help them substantially. Authorities say that until productivity increases in the food shortage countries their problems seem hopeless.

Now is the time to make apple jelly for those edible gifts during the Christmas season. This fall's plentiful crop provides a lot of raw product for apple spreads of varying construction. Let's use this surplus.

For gift, partying, or just at home use cookie making, there is a nice variety of chip help available. We're all familiar with chocolate chips. But how many of us have met cherry, lemon custard, or butterscotch chips? None of these chips have to be a part of a baked product to be enjoyed.

Can we each claim to be eligible

BARBARA MCKENZIE

Pickaway Girl To Visit 4-H National Meet

Barbara McKenzie will represent Pickaway County at the 36th National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago Sunday through Thursday. She is one of 30 delegates from Ohio awarded this experience in recognition of a good all-round 4-H record of achievement and general activities and especially outstanding accomplishments in one category of endeavor.

About 1,600 delegates from the 48 states, Alaska, Hawaii and Puerto Rico will attend the Congress.

Miss McKenzie, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence McKenzie of Route 1, was awarded the trip to the National Congress as State Winner in the 4-H canning program. Her all-expense paid trip is provided by the Kerr Glass Manufacturing Corp.

At the Congress, the delegates will participate in discussions, religious services, hear talks by leaders in industry and agriculture, be entertained by popular artists, and attend numerous luncheon and dinner meetings.

To belong to the club of wise shoppers and consumers of food items? If so, can we each, at the end of every day, say that we've had a balanced diet? This balance incorporates fruits, including citrus; green and yellow vegetables; meat, poultry, or fish; eggs, cereals; milk and or milk products; fats and sweets.

Do you remember this important part of a small verse on vitamins?

"They're found in Mother Nature's bins,
They're good for stouts as well as thins.

Mastitis Theme Of Dairy Meet

Farmers Planning
University Session

Dairymen will hear some of the nation's top authorities on mastitis control speak at an Ohio Dairyman's Assn. meeting Saturday in Plumb Hall on the Ohio State University campus.

Mastitis, a disease of dairy cattle, causes heavier losses in production than any other two or three troubles, according to George Hamrick, county agricultural agent.

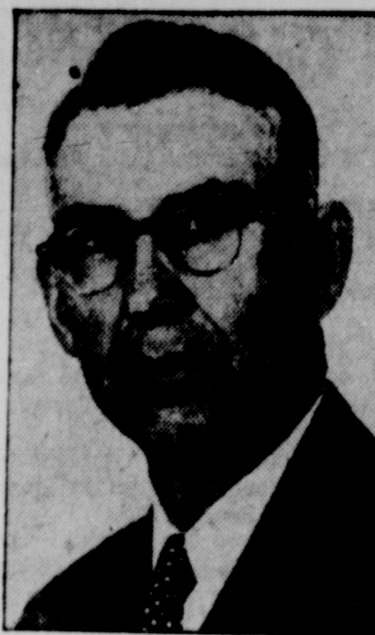

Dr. J. J. Reid, noted bacteriologist of Pennsylvania State University, will speak at 1:15 p. m. on "Bug Chasing Will Not Control Mastitis." A panel headed by C. D. McGrew, Extension dairy specialist, will discuss antibiotics and their use in mastitis control. Dr. T. D. Harman, of Circleville and of the dairy technology department will talk on the effects of antibiotics on milk and Dr. Samuel Saslaw of University Hospital of their effects on human health.

Speakers at the morning session will include W. B. Wood, director of the Agricultural Extension Service, and Dr. Fordyce Ely, chairman of Ohio State's dairy department. A business meeting also is scheduled.

Dairy Farmers of Pickaway County interested in attending as a group, should contact Hamrick.

4-H CLUB NEWS

By Clarence Cunningham

Would you like to attend the College of Agriculture or the School of Home Economics at the Ohio State University? Do you think you will need some financial assistance? If you have good grades in school and have been active in youth activities you have a chance to receive a scholarship when entering either of the above colleges.

Yes, over 70 scholarships are available to high school seniors who are interested, but you must act soon. If you want to take the competitive examination (20 scholarships are given on this basis), you will want to notify your local school administrator before December 1. The test will be given the same day as the general scholarship test in this county.

Other scholarships are available on application and in all cases must be submitted by Mar. 15, 1958. Contact your local teachers or the Extension Office for further information.

Many other colleges and universities have scholarships available but you must contact these schools soon if you are interested.

The 4-H club program in Pickaway County is nearly over for 1957, but we must look ahead to the coming year. One of the first activities in 1958 will be the organization of tractor clubs.

The 4-H tractor club emphasizes the "care" of tractors and machinery and not the "repair". Topics to be covered in meetings include: cooling systems, lubrication, ignition, safety, carburation, and many other adjustments and care the farmer can do to keep the tractor running.

In addition to learning about tractors, members become eligible to enter the county tractor operators contest. The 1957 Pickaway County winner, Nathan Wilson, received first in the state contest which made him eligible to compete in the regional contest in Kansas where he placed sixth. Why not join and have the 1958 winner from this county?

If you are between 14 and 20 and have access to a tractor you are eligible to join a 4-H tractor club.

Those members interested should contact the Agriculture Extension Service soon. We need an estimated number who are interested so it can be determined if there should be a county-wide club or local area clubs.

Lake Water Diversion Gets Lausche's OK

CLEVELAND (AP)—"Fresh water is now the critical and indispensable material for the continued growth of northern Ohio," U. S. Sen. Frank Lausche of Ohio stated in a letter to the Lake Erie Watershed Conservation Foundation.

The Foundation's plan to divert Lake Erie water to an eight-county area in northeastern Ohio "contains the solution of the problem," said the letter received Tuesday by John H. Byrne, Foundation executive director.
